THE GAZETTE

MONDAY EVENING, N. VEMB. 22.

AN EXPENSIVE BOY -McGui e. a firmer of Lyman township, Lilinois, wa tal a boy to work, and, as a master of economy, got an arphan named Charles O'Connell from the Christian Brothers Home in Coleant. McGaire, appears, worked the boy to get all the servihe could out of a shore life. O'Council stock it notil he could no longer stand, and then he told on his master, and a case of inhuman cruelty was charged against McGeire. The boy was rescued from the torrure just in time to be able to tell about it in court. O'Connell says that McGuire made him herd cartle in winter on horseback until his hands and feet were frozen and a most useless. One day he went into a neighbor's house to get warm. McGuire came and kicked him in the mouth and stove in his teeth.

He once became so becombed with cold that he fell from a load of fodder and broke his arm, and the next day because he did not get out of bed when he was called in the morning, McGuire dragged him out, drenched him and his eloties with cold water, and made him dress himself outside of the house when the thermometer was thirteen degrees below zero. McGuire was in the habit of flogging him with a leather strap with a buckle on the end until his less and back were full of holes and bleeding. When the boy was rescued he was bruised all over and lame, and appeared to bave very little life teft in him. His testimony was corroborated by other witnesses. The jury rendered a vertict of $7,600 damages against Mc Guire, which makes the boy come dear, but he will need the money to take care of his helplessness. McGuire is also being prosecuted criminally, and he has probably come to the conclusion that an orphan boy is poor economy if he gots a chance to talk to the neighbors.
